Elder Ulisses Soares: "When we promise at baptism to follow the Savior, we witness before the Father that we are willing to take upon us the name of Christ. As we strive to acquire His divine attributes in our lives, we become different than we were, through the Atonement of Christ the Lord, and our love for all people increases naturally. We feel a sincere concern for everyone's welfare and happiness. We see each other as brothers and sisters, as children of God with divine origin, attributes, and potential. We desire to care for each other and bear one another's burdens." (General Conference, October 2018)

Elder Ronald A. Rasband: "Reaching out to rescue one another, under any condition, is an eternal measure of love. Often we are given the opportunity to help others in their time of need. As members of the Church, we each have the sacred responsibility 'to bear one another's burdens, that they may be light,' 'to mourn with those that mourn,' and to 'lift up the hands which hang down, and strengthen the feeble knees.'" (General Conference, April 2014)

Elder Dieter F. Uchtdorf: "Because 'the gospel of Christ ... is the power of God unto salvation,' you can be confident, courageous, and humble as you share it. Confidence, courage, and humility may seem like contradictory attributes, but they are not. They reflect the Savior's invitation not to hide gospel values and principles under a bushel but to let your light shine, that your good works may glorify your Father in Heaven." (General Conference, April 2019)

President Marion G. Romney: "Only by voluntarily giving, out of an abundant love for his neighbor, can one develop that charity characterized by Mormon as the 'pure love of Christ'." (General Conference, October 1981)

Elder Henry B. Eyring: "Alma even told his people how to qualify for that unity. He told them that they should preach nothing save it were repentance and faith on the Lord, who had redeemed his people.

"What Alma was teaching ... is that the members' hearts are being changed through the Atonement of Jesus Christ. That is how their hearts become knit together." (General Conference, October 2006)

Elder D. Todd Christofferson: "In addition to stimulating our repentance, the very experience of enduring chastening can refine us and prepare us for greater spiritual privileges. Said the Lord, 'My people must be tried in all things, that they may be prepared to receive the glory that I have for them, even the glory of Zion; and he that will not bear chastisement is not worthy of my kingdom.' In another place He said, 'For all those who will not endure chastening, but deny me, cannot be sanctified.' As Elder Paul V. Johnson said this morning, we should take care not to resent the very things that help us put on the divine nature." (General Conference, April 2011)

Elder David A. Bednar: "Trust and confidence in Christ and a ready reliance on His merits, mercy, and grace lead to hope, through His Atonement, in the Resurrection and eternal life. Such faith and hope invite into our lives the sweet peace of conscience for which we all yearn. The power of the Atonement makes repentance possible and quells the despair caused by sin; it also strengthens us to see, do, and become good in ways that we could never recognize or accomplish with our limited mortal capacity. Truly, one of the great blessings of devoted discipleship is 'the peace of God, which passeth all understanding'." (General Conference, April 2015)

Reyna I. Aburto: "If you are constantly surrounded by a 'mist of darkness, turn to Heavenly Father. Nothing that you have experienced can change the eternal truth that you are His child and that He loves you. Remember that Christ is your Savior and Redeemer, and God is your Father. They understand. Picture Them close by you, listening and offering support. [They] will console you in your afflictions.' Read your patriarchal blessing or ask for a priesthood blessing so you can hear and remember how much Heavenly Father loves you and wants to bless you. Do all you can, and trust in the Lord's atoning grace." (General Conference, October 2019)
